Say They Will Continue in Business Despite His Threatened Withdrawal.

Contrary to the announcement of Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., that he would stop producing here in 1924 because of trouble with the Actors' Equity Assoother legiting managers indicated yesterday that they intend to keep on presenting shows. Though most of them believe that the actors' organization will enlicavor to enforce Equity shop with them when the strike agree ment runs out, members of the Produc ing Managers' Association either de clared outright they would not retire or exe were guardedly non-committal. This attitude was in contrast to that aken during the strike in 1919, when ome announced they would quit the show business if Equity won. George M. Cohan has already made good his assertion on this side of the Atlantic. For the present the other managers in the P. M. A., are protected from the Equity shop by the strike agreement. Though many of them are curtailing their productions temporarily for the present season, that does not mean, they indicated, a complete withdrawal from business.

Marc Klaw, according to one who was in close touch with him, has every intention of remaining in business with his sons. A. H. Woods is laying plans for the future undismayed by the prospect of the Equity shop, because, as he expressed it, he didn't believe "the Equity shop would hurt him." Col. Herry W. Savage said he didn't know whether he would retire as a producer or not. David Belasco declined to commit himself one way or the other.

Sam H. Harris, president of the P. M. A., said that two years hence he expected to be "doing business at the same old stand."

"As for going to London to produce," he added, "I think there'll be so many American managers over there by then that there won't be room for me."

At the office of A. L. Erlanger the belief was general that nothing short of a cataclysm of nature could prevent him from producing. A similar view was expressed by William Harris, Jr.

"Between my father, my brother and myself," he said, "this firm has been in business sixty years. It has lived through storm, tornado, fire and sudden death, and there is no reason why it shouldn't in the future. My health is perfectly good and the only thing to drive me out of the game would be utterly bad business."

Charles Frohman, Inc., under the leadership of Gilbert Miller, was regarded by an inside representative as likely to continue. George C. Tyler also was said to be undanned. From Charles Dillingham's office came the explanation that "instead of taking good American productions to London he expected to continue to bring good London productions to Marcia R.
